Drug agents sting pair in Locke Mills

By WENDY HANSCOM

Maine Drug Enforcement Agency agents sold two Locke Mills men a half pound of hashish last week, then arrested the pair for trafficking in the drug.

Jeffrey Clark, 18, and Joel McGouldrick, 20, both of Locke Mills were arrested and charged Thursday with trafficking in a schedule X drug, hashish, a class C felony, according to MDEA special agent Tony Milligan.

McGouldrick sold marijuana to a MDEA undercover agent in Newry on March 13, Milligan said.

"During the transaction, McGouldrick collaborated the information that he and his friend were hashish dealers that they'd lost their supplier and were looking for a local hashish supplier," Milligan said. "Because of the seriousness of the drug and because hashish is an uncommon drug in Oxford County we decided we needed to act quickly before they found a source and started to sell hashish in this area. So we agreed to sell a half pound of hashish to the two individuals for $1,100 on March 24. These individuals intended to buy it and distribute it in smaller gram quantities and double their profit."

The two men purchased the hashish from undercover agents on March 24, Milligan said.

"Once that happened officers from the Maine State Police, the Oxford County Sheriff's Office and the Bethel Police raided the house

MEA testing

Local boys once again lag behind girls

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Eighth-graders at Telstar Middle School scored at or above the state average in all but one subject area of the most recent Maine Educational Assessment testing.

But the recently released results mark the re-emergence of a familiar SAD44 pattern -- that of boys significantly underperforming their female classmates.

The scores for the test, which was conducted in November, show the local pupils outscoring their peers statewide in writing, science and humanities; performing at the state level in reading and social studies, and just slightly below in mathematics.

STATE AND LOCAL SCORES

Subject	State	TMS
Reading	290	290
Writing	260	300
Mathematics	325	315
Science	280	310
Soc. Studs.	255	310
Humanities	280	295

The strong showing in the latest test is consistent with the performance of other recent Telstar Middle School classes. The middle school's three-year average scores are now above the state level in all subjects except cept mathematics -- there the local average is the same as the state average.

The Maine Educational Assessment is given each year to all Maine students in grades four, eight and 11. The current eighth-grade class also performed well when they were tested here as fourth-graders.

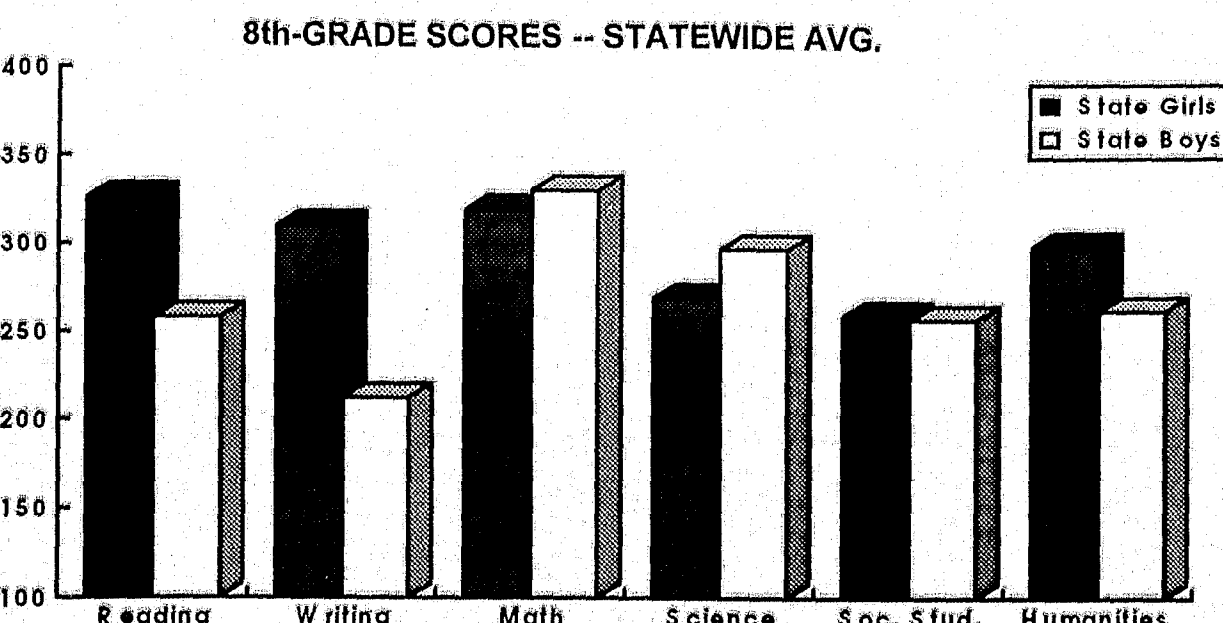

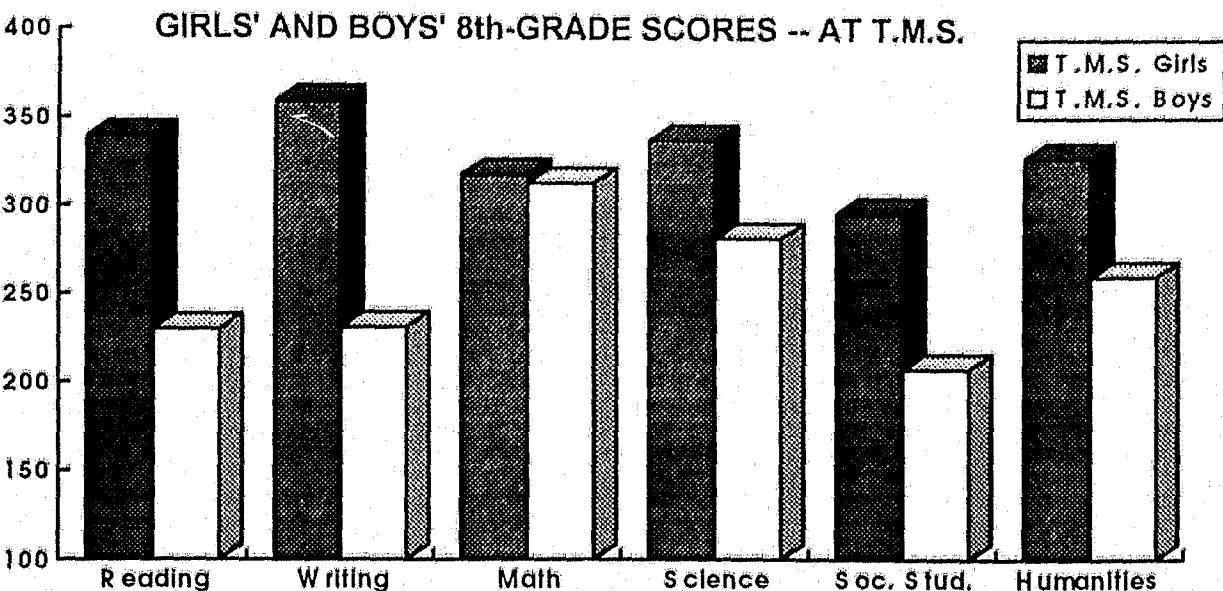

A comparison of the fourth- and eighth-grade scores for the local group shows that as eighth-graders they improved their overall scores slightly from what they had achieved four years earlier.

However, the improvement between their fourth- and eighth-grade scores was far less than the improvement of students statewide over the same four-year period.

Once again, a gender gap

While the overall scores for the eighth-grade class as a whole were strong, that strength was largely attributable to the performance of the girls in the class. In every subject area except mathematics, the local girls scored at least 40 points higher than the state average. In writing they scored nearly 100 points higher. (The scoring range on the test is 100 to 400. A difference of 25 points or more between two groups is considered to represent a significant discrepancy in achievement, according to a state testing official.)

Town Meetings conclude:

Woodstock keeps term limits

By WENDY HANSCOM

Woodstock residents turned down three Planning Board requests Monday evening.

Voters opted to keep Planning Board term limits, to retain a 10-foot setback ordinance and not to require a building permit for all new construction in town.

At Monday's annual Town Meeting, more than 90 townspeople voted on the proposed ordinance changes and the town's $729,745 municipal budget.

During the three-and-a-half hour meeting, voters lingered the longest over three ordinance changes proposed by the town's Planning Board.

Despite appeals from some former Planning Board members to lift a five-year board member term limit, voters rejected the plan by vote of 31-35. This is the second year in a row townspeople have upheld the term limit.

"I think we are confusing this one with our elected representatives in Congress, who get a lot of favors, taxpayer paid junkets and other benefits," said Marcel Polak, a former Planning Board member. "Nobody on the Planning Board gets special favors. All the people you had on the board worked hard and learned how to do their job. . . . With an inexperienced board you can open yourself up to law suits."

Last year's vote to uphold the term limits had the effect of unseating some long-time board members.

Former Planning Board chairman Margaret Hand said the term limits are in the board's by-laws, which were established in part by AV-COG.

"I think the town manager can attest to the fact that (the new board) is struggling," Hand said. "They don't have the old guard to help guide the way. The terms are staggered now and you have some turnover, but if someone wants to stay on, I think they should be allowed to. . . . You have to put some trust in your selectmen to appoint the best people for the job."

Other voters said it was unfair to ask town manager Vern Maxfield to spend extra time advising the relatively new board.

But former board member Lloyd Poland disagreed.

"It's obvious people do want to get on the board and stay until the cows come home because we fight over it every year," Poland said.

G'wood dumps stump dump fees

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Greenwood voters opted at their annual Town Meeting Saturday to eliminate the fees charged for disposal of brown goods at the stump dump the town shares with Woodstock.

Voters also approved establishing a committee to study the possibility of switching to a town manager form of government, and they rejected a proposal to require Town Meeting approval for the sale of tax-acquired property.

In matters of town finance, voters pared the budget in two places but otherwise went along with the suggestions of their selectmen.

The municipal budget approved Saturday was $348,601 (down from $351,646 for 1993).

When overlay and school and county levies are added in, the town's total budget for 1994 is projected to be $913,601.

Dump fees dropped

By a margin of 24-14, voters Saturday killed the fees the town had been charging for disposal of brown goods (televisions, mattresses, and such) at its stump dump.

The fees had been established in April by the joint Greenwood and Woodstock solid waste committee.

The committee is made up of three selectmen from each town and manages the stump dump and the transfer station shared by the two towns.

The fees were intended to offset the cost of a new brown-goods container at the dump. Having such a container was a condition of the DEP's relicensing of the stump dump, which the state agency had closed for three months last year.

First selectman Marie Bartlett said that over the past eight months the fees brought in approximately $4,000 toward the $11,000 it had cost to dispose of brown goods.

But former selectman Raymond Seames, who had requested the article eliminating the fees, argued that the fees were causing some people to dispose of trash along the roadways and in the woods.

To help make his point, Seames circulated a set of photographs of illegally dumped trash.

He noted that the state had outlawed private dumps 30 years ago, but because of the fees some people

Gilead OKs comprehensive plan

By WENDY HANSCOM

There was little discussion and no opposition Saturday evening as 30 Gilead voters took less than an hour to approve the town's $188,115 budget and a new comprehensive plan.

The comprehensive plan adopted at the annual Town Meeting was prepared by town officials and the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments. The plan includes all the town's present ordinances and proposes future land use and development options. Other than a clarification of who developed it, there was no discussion of or resistance to the plan.

Town Office accounting will be updated with the purchase of new computer equipment.

The new computer and its software will be bought with the $1,945 balance of the Comprehensive Planning account, and $500 from surplus.

The only other new piece of equipment voters were asked to purchase was a tailgate sander for the town truck. Townspeople agreed to pay $1,700 for the new sander, and to allow selectmen to sell the old one.

Voters also approved $8,000 for transfer station operating costs, and $14,000 to close the town's landfill.

It will cost Gilead taxpayers less this year to educate the town's children in SAD44.

The town school budget is down because the number of students enrolled in the district has dropped.

Last year, the town paid $193,943 in tuition to the district. This year, voters agreed to spend $178,268, with $67,023 of the $178,268 to be raised through local taxation, and the $111,245 balance to be paid with state education subsidy and other funds.

This year's total town budget is up $6,646, but the mill rate should remain the same. State Tree Growth revenue of $5,000 will help offset the increase, according to selectman Fernand Corriveau.

Elections

After no town volunteer stepped forward to moderate the meeting, visiting state Rep. Alvin Barth Jr. of Bethel was drafted to serve as moderator.

Voters elected Dan Barnes, who ran unopposed, for a three-year term as selectman.

Mildred McLain was reelected to her 35th term as town clerk.

Linsley Chapman was reelected as town treasurer and Beverley Corriveau will again serve as tax collector.

Maxine Corriveau was reelected to the School Committee.

Road commissioner Harry Taylor Jr. was reelected. Voters also agreed to provide health insurance for Taylor.

Upton elects two new selectmen

By WENDY HANSCOM

Upton voters elected two new selectmen last week, passed over the school budget and after some debate agreed to purchase a backhoe.

More than half of the town's 73 registered voters turned out to the annual Town Meeting, breaking recent attendance records (35 in 1993 and 22 in 1992).

The crowd numbered 44 through the election of officers and the backhoe purchase vote, but dwindled to 27 after those items were decided.

Residents agreed to table the town's school-budget items until it can be determined exactly how much it will cost to educate and transport the town's seven students.

After a lengthy discussion voters also agreed to purchase a two-wheel drive backhoe for no more than $20,000.

Town treasurer Clayton Thompson said the town spends approximately $7,750 per year for use of a backhoe, and a town-owned machine would be less expensive to operate.

A town-owned $20,000 backhoe, he said, would cost $434 per month for a five-year loan, plus $300 a year for insurance, or approximately $5,500 per year.

Townspeople voted 24-17 in favor of purchasing the machine, despite the selectmen's recommendation against it.

But residents later voted down, 11-10, an article calling for setting aside $5,000 to establish a Capital Equipment Account for future heavy equipment purchases.

Elections

Incumbent town clerk, treasurer and tax collector Clayton Thompson was challenged by Pat Angevine for all three positions. But Thompson won by a margin of 24-17 in all three written ballot elections.

Voters also elected two new selectmen, one for a three-year term, the second for one year.

Bob Brown, Mike Grondin and Robert Dapolito were all nominated for the three-year term. Brown and Grondin tied 20-20 on the first vote.

Grondin was elected 22-18 on the second vote. Dapolito received no votes in either election.

Nominated for the one-year term were Brown, Dapolito and Peter MacCulloch. Brown won by a vote of 21-19, with no votes for Dapolito. Brown and Grondin join incumbent selectman Constance Gagnon.

Voters also elected Wanda Piawlock, 27-11, over Sue Nelson for a three-year term on the town's School Committee.

Once the elections and backhoe purchase discussion were over, voters quickly and with little discussion approved the rest of the town's $65,513 municipal budget.

STOP SCRAPPING AND GET ALONG

To the Editor:

We need both the Bethel Area Health Center and Bethel Emergency Ambulance Rescue Service in this town. Both are doing a great job. It is time they stopped acting like kids and tried to get along with each other.

It is true there have been a lot of different doctors at the Health Center since it opened its doors years ago.

What about the ambulance service? They, too, have had a lot of new bosses. This doesn't mean they are not still needed in this town.

I wonder if maybe certain ones don't want to try to have both run exactly as they want them run.

My husband and I worked on the ambulance for a number of years. In fact, Arthur was among one of the first to help get the volunteer ambulance service on the road. We found out that a few always wanted to run things their own way. No doubt some on each side were to blame for not being able to get along.

Now, let's each and everyone try harder to get along.

This town needs them both. They should stop scrapping before the town loses them both.

A LITTLE RESPECT NEEDED

To the Editor:

In answer to last week's letter to the editor on "attitude adjustment needed," I think the writer's attitude sounds like it could use some adjustment.

I have observed the BEARS and our Fire Department working together on many occasions, and they seemed to be getting along very well, each doing his job and respecting each other. So if indeed this was a problem, it must have been set aside and placed in the past. Both of these voluntary groups working together prove they are two of the town's biggest assets.

Healing will not occur by opening old wounds. Let it be. Don't rock the boat. Let's give both these groups the respect they deserve.

CROSSWALK COURTESY

To the Editor:

Ever since last summer or fall when crosswalks were painted onto Main Street, I have seen practically no one paying the least attention to them. Soon after one was painted up near the drugstore, I found, almost to my regret, that two trucks coming from each direction did not stop. Guess I was gullible to think the stripes meant that motorists obeyed the law and naturally would stop.

Yesterday, while parked beside the bank, the bus discharged some school kids and several waited to cross the street, but car after car didn't even slow down, and they had to wait until the street was clear.

Courtesy should let persons cross the street safely by stopping the vehicle, but I understand stopping at crosswalks is also a state law. It is about time it was enforced before someone gets injured.

THANKS FOR SAFER FAMILIES HELP

To the Editor:

On Saturday, March 26, Sater Families held a fund-raising breakfast. We would like to thank the Bethel Inn for the use of the chafing dishes and the Bethel Historical Society for the chairs.

A special thanks goes to Rick Wiltz and Dan Smith of Skidders for arranging the cooking for this wonderful breakfast and for providing us the place to hold it.

For those who supported our breakfast -- thank you. We were able to raise $250, which will pay for one month's hotline bill with some left over for other expenses.

We are encouraged by the support we have received, and it continues to reinforce our faith, belief and goal that Safer Families is and will remain alive and well.

By working together and supporting each other, we can all make a difference -- Thank You.

GOP GUBERNATORIAL FORUM

To the Editor:

The first major gubernatorial forum of the political season is scheduled for Saturday, April 9, at 3:30 p.m., at the Bethel Inn Conference Center.

The event is sponsored by the Oxford County Republican Committee and will feature all eight Republican candidates. Republican Rep. Al Barth of Bethel will moderate the forum, which will include a period of questions from the public, as well as a statement by each candidate and questions from the moderator.

The Bethel Gubernatorial Forum presents an early opportunity for the public to meet the candidates after the official filing deadline of April 1. The 1994 governor's race has attracted an outstanding field of qualified candidates. The Republican Party in Maine and Oxford County are pleased to be represented by such a diverse group of candidates for the seat being vacated by the current Republican Governor, John McKernan.

MAP OF THE FUTURE? At a press conference prior to last week's Northern Forest Lands Council listening session at the Bethel Inn, forester and author Michael Coffman (left) and Leon Favreau, co-owner of Bethel Furniture Stock, display a map which purportedly shows the areas of Maine (roughly 50 percent) which environmentalists are working to set aside in a reserve-and-corridor system for protecting the biodiversity of the Northern Forest. But despite their worries about the environmentalists' ultimate objectives, both Coffman and Favreau supported the NFLC's draft recommendations, as did all but two or three of the more than 50 people who spoke up at the Wednesday evening's session. Among the local people commenting last week was John Head of Bethel, who applauded the council's recommendations, but strongly urged that funding to achieve the goals of the report be provided by environmental organizations, not by taxpayers. The public has until May 16 to respond to the draft proposal. The council is scheduled to make its final recommendations to Congress and the governors of the four northeast states sometime this summer.

"We just gave Vern a raise, he'll be all right."

Townpeople also said no to requiring all plans for all new construction in town to go before the Planning Board.

Voters argued that the change was too restrictive and that the current ordinance, requiring a permit for any new construction valued at more than $1,000, was adequate.

A third Planning Board request, to eliminate the town's 10-foot setback ordinance, was also overwhelmingly rejected.

"Ten feet," Jane Chandler said, "I don't want to open the window of my house into somebody else's door."

The town's fire chief said putting houses closer together could be dangerous. "We'll be fighting two fires not one," Chief William Seames said.

Contractor Ken Ruff said it would be impossible for landowners to protect their property if their neighbors were building 10 feet from the shared property line. "There'll be some type of property damage," Ruff said, "it just can't be avoided."

Two years ago, the town voted to decrease the setback from 20 feet to 10 feet.

New purchases

Voters agreed Monday to a few new equipment purchases and projects, and turned down tarring the Concord Pond Road.

Selectmen received approval to spend $10,000 on a new computer and tax billing and accounting software.

With little discussion, townspeople also voted to purchase a new $125,000, 4,000-gallon tank truck for the Fire Department.

Selectmen also got permission to enter into a new lease agreement for a backhoe.

The town's plan to number nameless roads and install fire lane signs will continue. Voters approved $675 for signs to go up this summer in the North Pond area.

Voters also agreed to spend $5,500 to put a partial fence around the Woodstock athletic fields, and to set aside $20,000 toward the expansion of the Whitman Memorial Library.

The road tarring article had been placed on the warrant by petition of the Concord Pond Association.

But voters balked at the estimated $500,000 price of paving the 3.2 mile seasonable-use-only road.

The proposal was overwhelmingly defeated.

And following Greenwood's lead, Woodstock voters agreed to drop disposal fees on brown goods at the Greenwood and Woodstock Transfer Station -- except commercial haulers.

Elections

Voters elected a selectman, SAD44 School Board director and library trustee.

Steven Bies challenged incumbent Percy Monk for a selectman's seat, but fell short by a vote of 61 to 32.

Marcel Polak ran unopposed and was reelected to a three-year term on the SAD44 Board of Directors.

Nadja Bolio was reelected to a three-year term on the Whitman Memorial Library Board of Trustees.

Raises for Town Manager Maxfield and Town Clerk Betty Benner were also approved.

Clifford York moderated the meeting.

MEAs

Local boys on the other hand, scored well below the state average in all areas of the test except mathematics and science. They also scored below their female classmates in all six subject areas on the test -- including mathematics and science, where boys traditionally outscore girls.

The scores for local boys and girls were as follows:

SAD44 GENDER BREAKDOWN

Subject	Girls	Boys
Reading	339	230
Writing	359	231
Mathematics	317	312
Science	336	281
Soc. Studs.	295	207
Humanities	326	259

This pattern of underachievement by boys on the MEAs has been a persistent one in SAD44, although it has not been as apparent in the results of the past two years as in the first seven years of testing.

The difference in achievement between local boys and girls is not a reflection of a similar statewide pattern (see graphs on page one).

As early as 1989, a state testing expert warned SAD44 teachers and administrators that boys' scores in the district indicated that, as a group, males here were "at risk."

District administrators, however, have traditionally argued that there is no real gender gap; or that if there is a gap, it will eventually be eliminated by delivering quality education to all students, regardless of gender.

As to the most recent results, middle school principal Bruce Bell acknowledged "clearly there's an aberration in this class. I can't tell you why it's there or explain it. I can only tell you it's there."

Bell also described the current eighth-graders as "a very social class," with many students, particularly boys, who are reluctant to do their homework.

"It's an aggravation in this class I haven't had before," Bell said. "To say it wasn't would be a lie."

From the

Bethel Town Office

There are several good topics of discussion this time of year, three of which I want to cover today. I'll start with the hardest.

Mud season has all too quickly come upon us and people traveling on dirt roads will soon be calling with complaints. I want to acknowledge that it is frustrating to live or travel with any regularity a dirt road this time of year. At the same time, I need to reduce some expectations of relief from the town.

Frequently, people who have built a home in a remote area to enjoy the peace and quiet pay the price of difficult access. The road that seemed fine during building season may become a quagmire in mud season. In fact, the poor condition of the road may be a hidden reason why you own the property, since poorly accessed property is cheaper than its other attractions lead you to expect, so it looks like a good deal.

My point is that while the town tries to assure access of emergency vehicles to all taxpayers, there is usually very little to be done for a mud road short of rebuilding it, which cannot be done without Town Meeting approval of substantial amounts of money. Putting a truck on a muddy road for repair purposes usually worsens the condition of the road, and oftentimes dumping more gravel in the mud is a wasted effort because it just gets sucked down. The best that can be done is minor improvements when the road is dry; we improve ditches, replace or install new culverts, and add gravel.

Several years ago the town resolved this problem for newly built roads by adopting standards for road design and construction. But the fact remains that some town roads are little more than a few inches of gravel on cleared dirt paths. These roads need to be dug out two feet down, drainage systems should be installed, and good sub-base and base material should be laid. Until that time, I beg your patience with the road crew working on the roads and the town office staff who answer the phone when you call. They are all trying to do their best in a bad situation.

Another point to make in early spring is that the new sewer billing system will make increases in your water use much more obvious to you. If you are a sewer customer and you use a great deal of water to irrigate gardens, lawns or the like, this is a good time to get a second water meter installed. If you have a second meter, your sewer bill can be adjusted to reflect the amount of water going out the door rather than down the lines to the treatment plant. Please call Ginny Johnson at the Town Office or the Bethel Water District for details.

Finally, I want to remind folks that Town Meeting is June 14 and 15. I am looking for a volunteer to "sign" at public hearings and Town Meeting, so if you are interested in practicing that skill, please give a call. Also, please be advised that any articles to be considered by the Board of Selectmen for inclusion on the warrant must be submitted to the Town Office by April 1. After that, articles will only be included if they meet the requirements of legal petition.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Special thanks are due Pooh Corner Farm for the pot of tulips recently presented to the Society.

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on April 7 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Featured speaker for the evening will be Society Director Stanley R. Howe, who will make a presentation on the many historical ties between Bethel and Cleveland, Ohio. Howe will discuss some of the figures who came to Bethel from Cleveland, including Dr. John George Gehring and William Bingham II. Also, Liberty Holden migrated to Cleveland and was at one time a major figure in that city, owning the best-known newspaper, "The Plain Dealer." Holden was born in Sweden, Maine, but was a graduate of Gould Academy during the years Dr. N.T. True was principal.

Other connections include the many patients who came to Bethel from Cleveland to seek Dr. Gehring's help in his nationally famous clinic founded in Bethel in 1896. Anyone wishing to attend this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

The next issue of the society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier," will be out soon. It will feature an article by Linda Saunders on Collins Morgan, Bethel's last Civil War soldier.

Greenwood

were once again beginning to accumulate waste on their own property.

"This trash creates a hazard for property owners and it's a fire hazard," he said.

Others agreed. "People are trashing the town," said Albert Curtis. The inconvenience of having to go to the town office to pay the fee was also a problem, Curtis said. (The town office is located in Locke Mills, the stump dump in Greenwood City.)

Bartlett said the solid waste committee was studying ways to have the fees collected at the dump, rather than at the town office.

She acknowledged that illegal dumping was a problem, but she said it was a problem everywhere, not just in towns that impose user fees.

And she warned that if the fees were eliminated at the Greenstock stump dump, then residents of surrounding towns that do have fees would start taking their waste to the Greenwood City facility -- and Greenwood and Woodstock taxpayers would ultimately have to pay to have it disposed of.

"We are going to be a sitting duck," she predicted.

But Curtis contended that much of the waste currently being disposed of along the roads in town was coming from larger surrounding towns. "They aren't going to dump their trash on Main Street in Bethel or Norway," he said.

Selectman Harry Swan Jr. said that one Bryant Pond contractor was already suspected of dumping waste from jobs in Bethel at the Greenstock stump dump.

But Seames said the problem of out-of-town disposal at the stump dump was being overstated. Pointing out that would-be dumpers must have a sticker from one of the two towns, he said residents certainly weren't going to start approaching their out-of-town friends, offering to haul their trash for them.

After nearly an hour of debate the article killing the fees passed easily.

Voters then went on to cut the amount of money the selectmen were asking to run the stump dump.

The selectmen had proposed two figures: $15,000 if the fees were left in place, $20,000 if the fees were voted out.

But voters, after killing the fees, approved only the $15,000 figure for Greenwood's share of running the facility.

Seames and another former selectman, Herb Dunham, thought even that figure was too high.

Seames pointed out that Greenwood pays only 40 percent of the cost of running the stump dump, and last year the total cost (to both towns) of running the facility was only $17,000.

And Dunham called the two figures "way out of whack, just a way to scare people."

Bartlett said the higher figures were estimates to cover salary increases, increased disposal costs, and for heating the shack at the dump. But she acknowledged that it was hard to calculate the cost without more experience running the newly renovated facility.

"We'll get a real true picture by next year," she said.

Voters, however, overwhelmingly agreed that $15,000 should be enough to do the job.

Board keeps land sale authority

Seames had submitted two other articles for Saturday's meeting, and in both of these cases voters sided with the selectmen's suggestions.

They narrowly defeated (16-14) an article calling for Town Meeting approval before the selectmen could dispose of tax-acquired property.

Several pieces of property had been sold this year, and Seames argued that the selectmen had not adequately explored the possible value to the town of some of those parcels, especially a 140-acre woodlot and some small shorefront parcels.

"I think down the road, for years and years to come, we're going to regret getting rid of those shorefront parcels," he said.

Dunham again sided with Seames, claiming that there was at least $100,000 worth of stumpage on the woodlot, which the town sold for $32,000.

Bartlett countered that the parcels had been assessed and sold for at or near their assessed value, bringing in money that was used to pay for a badly needed new plow truck, and to build the town's surplus.

And Swan claimed the shoreland parcels were too small to be of interest to anyone other than current abutters (all three parcels were purchased by abutters).

And town clerk Phyllis Coolidge chided Seames and Dunham for criticizing the woodlot sale. Noting that both men had been selectmen, she said: "That lot has been on our books for 60 years. Why didn't you guys come up with some bright ideas."

After voters turned down Seames' article, selectman Galen Curtis said the board would try to work with groups and organizations in town to see if there were alternative uses for the town's remaining parcels of tax-acquired property.

Manager study OK'd

Voters also approved forming a volunteer committee to study the feasibility of adopting a town manager form of government.

The committee is to report back by next year's annual Town Meeting.

Voters rejected an amendment by Seames calling for the committee to report back by October of 1994 -- so that the switch to town manager government (should voters approve it) could be made by the next annual Town Meeting.

But others thought the committee would need at least a year for its study, and that it should make its report to a regular Town Meeting.

"If we're thinking about changing the way the town is governed, they should make their report to a regular Town Meeting," said Mellen Kimball.

Seames' amendment was easily defeated, and the original article passed overwhelmingly, with all three current selectmen also voting for the study.

In balloting for town officers, all incumbents were elected without opposition.

Drugs

and the two were arrested without resistance," he said.

During the resulting search of the residence, Milligan said, drug paraphernalia, including digital scales and loose marijuana, was seized as evidence.

When asked if the MDEA's actions could be perceived as entrapment, Milligan said, "It's not entrapment because they're already drug dealers. It's not like we walked up to someone on the street and asked them to be a drug dealer. They were going to find their hashish source in a matter of time anyway, and hashish isn't a popular drug in Oxford County. We thought we should act quickly before they found their source and before they started distributing. It would have sold like wildfire. They were charged with trafficking instead of possession because they purchased it with the intent to redistribute it."

Milligan said the MDEA has conducted other such "reversals" or sting operations throughout the state with marijuana and cocaine sales.

McGouldrick was also charged with one count of trafficking in a schedule Z drug, marijuana, which is a class D misdemeanor. The charge was based on the March 13 sale to a MDEA agent, Milligan said.

If convicted of the hashish trafficking charges, the pair face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine, Milligan said. McGouldrick's marijuana charge carries a maximum one-year prison term and $2,000 fine.

From the Bethel Police log:

Burglar leaves trail of CDs in the snow

March 21, police responded to a report of a burglary at a Intervale Road residence. The burglar went through an already broken window that had been covered with plastic, according to police. The complainant told police the house had been thoroughly gone through. Entertainment equipment was valued at $1,580 stolen. The burglar dropped a few CDs in the snow outside the home. Another Intervale Road home was broken into Saturday. The house was ransacked, according to the report. The homeowners reported a chest, phone and flashlight valued at $135 were missing.

Also in police news last week, Saturday, three renters in different units at the Bethel Inn told police skis had been stolen from their cars' roof racks. A inn employee recovered one-and-a-half pairs of the skis.

Bethel softball sign-ups extended

The deadline for ages 8 to 17 to sign up for the Bethel Rec Board softball program has been extended to April 7.

This year softball players will be participating in the Oxford Hills Area Softball League. The league is currently composed of the towns of Buckfield, Hebron, West Paris, South Paris, Norway, Greenwood, Woodstock, Poland, and Oxford.

The team will play a regular schedule with home games and away games. Practice will begin when the snow and mud disappears. Games will begin at the end of May or early June, and the regular league will finish at the end of July. The season will culminate with league play-offs, league championship games and an all star game.

There is the possibility that the rec board would be able to field two teams -- one composed of 8 to 12 year olds that are in a minor softball league; and the other composed of 12-17 year olds that are in a major softball league. This depends on the number of children that are interested in playing.

Registration forms are available at the Town Office. The fee is $5 per player, or $10 for a family for Bethel residents; and $10 for out-of-town players, or $20 for a family.

"Between The Lines"

Dear Friends:
It's almost Easter. Time for bunnies, chicks and lambs -- the staples of children's Easter baskets. We admit that we love both the stuffed and the handy types ourselves. But, we'd like to suggest that this year you add some of our wonderful children's books to the basket of your favorite child.
In our Easter displays you'll find tiny board books (just the right size for little hands), beautiful picture books in paperback and hard cover, as well as books of children's prayers and bible stories.
Come, after the last jellybean is eaten, those special children will still be craving their books. They're presents that are opened again and again!

Ras and Karlene Bachelder and Yours Truly were in Unity a while back. We had a sort of family get-together. There was Karlene's mother, Julia Goodwin; Karlene's twin sisters Wilma and Hilma; their nephew David, Wilma's son, and his wife Mary; also a friend of the twins (I didn't get the name, sorry). We had a delicious lunch and great fun.

The Windy Valley Sno-Mobile Club met Thursday night, March 17, with Owen Wight presiding. Secretary Sylvia Gray read the last month's report, and treasurer Bob Lowell brought the finances up to date. Safety director Don Gray reported there were no problems on the trails. The trail men: Leo, Owen, Herb and Bill said that the trails are still passable and enjoyed. Bill and Sylvia Wight attended the Northeast Chapter of Snowmobilers in Milinocket last week. P.S. So far there have been eight snowmobile deaths in Maine this winter, some from speed and foolishness, too bad -- but none were Windy Valley members.

Recent guests of Sylvia and Bill Wight were Marlene and Steve Wight of Old Town, Allan Brown and Brooks, and Lucille and Lewis Newall of Newburg. They all enjoyed the Windy Valley's S.C.

Sunday service at the Newry Community Church was held at Owen Wight's residence on Sunday, March 20, with Pastor Rodney Hanscom officiating and daughter Nancy was at the organ. The message of the day was: "The High Priest," from Psalm 51:1-12, Jeremiah 31:31-34, Hebrews 5:5-10, St. John 12:20-33 and St. John 17.

On April 1, at 7 p.m., there will be a Good Friday service at the Church. On April 3, at 7 a.m., there will be a Sunrise Service at Mother Walker Falls, followed by a breakfast at the home of Sue and Owen Wight. Easter services at the Church will begin at 9 a.m. Everyone welcome.

Members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" who bowled at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, last week were: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Eleanor Davis, Bea Lowell and Olive Anderson, Jim Anderson was a guest. Of the "Righties," who bowled only two strings, Eleanor was high on the doubles and Bea was high on the singles. Of the "Lefties" Betsy was high on both the triples and singles with one string of 100 and another of 108. She had six spares, Karlene had one spare, Gil had one spare, Bea had three spares, Eleanor had one spare and Olive had one spare.

April Fools' Day, Sunday the first....Here are a few foolish quotes for anyone who is foolish enough to read them.... "People are never so near playing the fool as when they think themselves wise." "If the advice of a fool for once, happens to be good, it requires a wise man to carry it out." "He must be a thorough fool who can learn nothing from his own follies."

The Compliments of the Season to my Worthy Master, and Merry First of April to us all... We have all a speck of the "Follies."

Recent birthday celebrations were: Kevin Wight (5 years old on March 8) and Katie Wight (10 years old on March 19), children of Brad and Brenda Wight. Family and friends helped them celebrate their special days. Mandy Berry, daughter of Scott and Retta Berry, turned 13 on March 23 and was honored at a birthday party on the 25th with family and friends.

Brenda Wight; Terri, Doni, and Staci Littlehale; Retta and Mandy Berry; and Nancy Wight went to the Boston Flower Show.

A special school board meeting was held at the Town Office on March 24. Superintendent Ron Jenkins, Bruce Powell, the three board members, Terri Beauchene and the Scribners attended. The main part of the agenda was continued discussion of student transportation.

Fifty people gathered at the Upton School House for the annual Town Meeting on Thursday, March 24. Several voters were present who had not attended for a few years. Others were more recent residents there for the first time. Although there was opposition, most of the officers were reelected. Mike Grondin was elected for three years as selectman-assessor and Bob Brown was elected for one year to fill a vacancy. It is a first for these gentlemen. The weather was pleasant.

Prayer meetings formerly held on Thursdays have been shifted to Monday evening at the Bob Brown home. Everyone welcome.

The St. Patrick's Day supper was a grand success, as are all the Ladies' Aid functions.

Saturday, March 19, Jean Mackenzie went to her doctor's and he admitted her to the hospital in Norway. At this writing she is still there but feeling better.

We got the snowstorm yesterday that was predicted. It was a real wet and heavy snow which fell all day and accumulated about eight inches. Of course there was no school sessions kept. I guess it was bad traveling, but people did get to work and we got our mail but no daily paper from Lewiston Daily Sun.

The Hamlin Temple of the Pythian Sisters met last week in Oxford with 11 members and two guests present. It was noted that the Knights of Pythias may have to disband and attend other lodges, and something would have to be done with the K. of P. Hall in Stoneham. The Pythian Sisters may possibly take it over. Their next meeting will be March 29.

On Monday, March 21, Gladys Kilgore and Eleanor Nelson went to Hilltop Hairdos in East Waterford. It was a good day, and when we came home we met a couple of nice Italians for lunch.

The sap buckets are being hung on the maple trees in the local areas and that means some nice maple syrup later on.

The sixteenth snowstorm of the season dropped nearly a foot of heavy, wet snow on this area on Tuesday. Our power was off here nearly seven hours.

Recent callers here have been Mrs. Phyllis Bancroft and Barbara Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Turner of Otisfield, Mr. and Mrs. Edroy Curtis of Mechanic Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gardner of Waterford and Bill and Phyllis Bancroft spent last Sunday visiting Pete and Margaret Baker in Errol, N.H.

The 50-degree temperatures the past two days melted all this week's new snow and helped settle some of the old. How nice to open windows for some fresh "spring" air.

Gilead

By LOUISE LORING

In two more days we turn our calendars to the month of April. This is the month when we celebrate Easter and the Resurrection of Christ. We all rejoice, for the chilling, long, dark, cold days of winter now lay behind us. We are the victors! We have lived again to see the greening of the world, unfolding in every flower that blooms, every tree that buds, and smell again the freshness of spring. We ourselves rekindle and renew the fires of our dejected tired winter spirits and put on a new fresh being. For it says in II Corinthians, 5:17 -- "Behold the new has come." The world bursts forth in fresh, sweet new beginnings all about us, and our experiences in life that have seemed so hum-drum and dull are replaced with new vigor, new understanding, a new compassion for our own as well as our neighbors.

"Springtime is Music. Listen to its soft refrains. You have not a thing to lose, my friends, and everything to gain." Keep the Faith and may God Bless.

Several families from Gilead and surrounding communities traveled to West Boylston, Mass., on the weekend of March 19 to attend the wedding of Jody Morin to Lynn Quirey of Rutland, Mass. Attending the wedding were: Mrs. Darlene Corriveau, mother of the groom, and son Jeremy; Mr. and Mrs. John Corriveau and three children; Robert Corriveau; Jody Gaudreau and Lois McGurn; Darlene Corriveau and friend Bob Quirey; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Morin and family from Bethel; Adrian Morin, Jr.; and Yvonne Morin and friend Jennifer of Waterford. Following the 2 p.m. ceremony, a reception was held at Franklyn Manor in West Boylston. Guests at the wedding stayed at the Howard Johnson Motor Inn in that city. Mr. and Mrs. Jody Morin are making their home together in Rutland, Mass.

As I write this column, outside a pile of heavy, wet snow has laden down the apple trees out back. This snow is commonly called "sap snow" or "Poor Man's Fertilizer." The den window hosts some spring arrivals at the feeders, among them two or three sodden, lonesome red-winged blackbirds, first spotted on March 18. We haven't as yet sighted any bluebirds or robins; these birds know that food is covered and choose to remain to the south of us at the present time.

Another day of treacherous travel for those who have to travel to their workplaces, and sadly for the school buses, as school was not called off.

By ANDREA WING

Esther Davis and daughter Pat Tibbetts traveled to South Livermore recently to visit with Esther's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pike. They had a nice visit while there.

The Johnsons have been at their old South Woodstock School House quite a bit lately. They ski and use the part-time winter residence while here.

Wednesday morning, I took my son and his wife, Rick and Karon Wing to the Portland Jetport. We left here at 4 a.m., and the roads were very icy so we did not have a lot of time at the airport before they had to leave. They are going on a much-deserved vacation in Orlando, Fla., for about a week. I'm going to pick them up next Wednesday; I hope the weather's good. Neither one of them had ever flown and were quite nervous. They called the next day and said they had arrived safe and sound and enjoyed the flight once they were airborne.

Another cat has shown up on my doorstep. It is a beautiful black cat; if it is yours, please let me know. I cannot let it in, as I have two adult male cats who dislike other cats. It is so sad when people do not tend to their animals and leave them for someone else. These animals suffer. This has happened quite often around here. These same people would think it was a crime if someone did not care for a horse, dog or another animal. A cat needs to be fed and nurtured as well.

Laurene Appleby stopped by the day of the storm, as the shoe shop where she works had lost its power and her ride couldn't make it to get her home. Laurene called someone with a 4-wheel drive to come get her.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

Sometimes, something almost makes you hear time, as if it went by overhead on rustling wings, dropping everyone away into the years. Monday was like that to me this week.

The sun was preparing to drop behind the mountains into a crimson abyss, before I was ready for it to do so.

The view was wonderful. The mountains in the distance gave the effect of a reposing camel. A patch of sunset-light was flung over its highest hump like a gay crimson saddle. A few houses could be seen nestled against its bushy sides. Overhead scuds were blowing across the sky like a flock of woolly white sheep pelling after their leader.

The world was drugged with silence. What an evening!

Then came night, a good sleep and morning. What a change! Snow was coming down, first like white cornmeal. I thought of the Indian saying, "Snow like meal, snow a great deal." Several inches came. There was a world of fantasy and snow was still falling. Each flake was so delicate as it drifted and turned in the air. This continued the rest of the day. It looked as if everything had been dipped in flour.

My birches down by the pond were bent nearly double, and I hoped that they wouldn't break.

Only a few yesterdays ago I had felt spring. I saw a robin on March 16. I greeted him with these words, "You little fool, what ARE you doing here?" My answer was a song. The poor soul, how can he survive?

Sunday, the Pulsifers saw an otter on the ice. We quite often see one when the ice starts to go out. But what was this one doing? It seemed to be looking for a way to get back into the water. It disappeared; perhaps through a hole that a fisherman had made. Otters have a lithe, streamlined body, with short legs and webbed feet, so they can swim rather fast.

Our pirate, the raccoon, which is at home anywhere, has been out and visited my shed.

Another surprise came to me when I saw the chipmunk out from hibernation, gathering seeds from under my bird feeders.

Can spring be far away, even if it has snowed AGAIN?

Nick Strait of Freeport visited his grandmother, Rena Curtis over the weekend.

Nestor Tamminen has returned from the hospital to his home.

All but Robert and his family were at the farm on Sunday. Fay, Ann and I attended church.

Kathy Curtis had supper with her aunt, Rena Curtis, one evening this week.

Robert Holt of Windsor came to South Paris on business on Monday, so he came to see his parents before returning home.

I went to Retired Teachers on Saturday with Eleanor Heath, Lettie Brooks and Dorothy Ross. It was a very interesting meeting. There were about 50 in attendance.

Employing Household Workers Creates Tax Liability

This article is brought to you by Jane Gray, CPA

Though Congress talked a good deal about changing the tax rules affecting domestic workers, there still has been no change in the requirements that get so many politicians in hot water last year.

If you employ household workers, you should be aware of the tax requirements governing their wages. If you pay $50 or more per quarter to anyone for performing services in your home, you are required to pay FICA (social security and Medicare) taxes of 15.3% on the wages. You should require the worker to pay half the taxes (7.65%), but if you don't withhold the employee's share from his or her wages, you are still responsible for the total 15.3%. You may also be liable for other payroll taxes, such as federal and state unemployment tax.

If the services are not provided at your home or if the provider is an independent contractor, you are not considered an employer and are not subject to these requirements. If you engage an agency or service who provides workers to perform services for you (and the agency hires, fires, and pays the workers), it is generally the agency's responsibility to take care of payroll taxes.

Some household workers resist any tax withholding or reporting to the IRS because they want their take-home pay to be higher. However, when the worker applies for unemployment or social security benefits, your failure to comply with the law may come to light. You could be held responsible for back taxes, plus interest and penalties.

Congress may get around to dealing with this issue in 1994, but there's no guarantee. In the meantime, if you need details on the requirements or assistance with the tax filings, please contact our office.

Honey-Pecan Chicken

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1/2 c. dried bread crumbs | 2 tbs. honey |
| 4 chicken breast cutlets (1/2 breast) | 1 tbs. lemon juice |
| 1/4 cup flour | 1 tsp. Parsley |
| 1 egg lightly beaten | 1/2 tsp. cornstarch |
| 2 tbs. vegetable oil | dash pepper |
| 1/4 cup chopped pecans | 1/2 tsp. grated orange peel |
| 1/2 cup chicken broth | |

On wax paper spread bread crumbs. Coat both sides of cutlets with flour; dip into beaten egg, then into crumbs. In a non-stick skillet heat oil on med-hi heat; add chicken, cook turning once until lightly brown, about 3 or 4 min. Remove chicken to your serving platter and keep warm.

In same skillet saute pecans in butter until lightly toasted; be careful not to burn. In a small bowl combine broth, honey, lemon juice, parsley, corn starch, pepper and orange peel. Stir to dissolve cornstarch. Add this to the pecans stirring constantly, bringing mixture to a boil. Reduce heat, simmer until this thickens, keeping it stirred. 4 to 5 min. Pour this over the chicken and garnish with thinly sliced orange round. Serve immediately. This can be served with white rice or pasta noodles. For a vegetable, I enjoy ginger glazed baby carrots.

Note: the grated orange is quite important to give this dish a unique citrus taste.

SAD44

Board begins budget work

By WENDY HANS COM

The SAD44 Board of Directors will begin this year's round of budget discussions tonight in Andover.

The initial draft of the FY '95 budget is $6,818,598, or 11.9 percent more than the FY '94 budget.

The board met last week to listen to administrators and supervisors justify their individual budget requests, but little discussion of the proposals ensued.

This year's budget maintains all the district's existing programs and does not add back any programs cut during the past few years, according to Superintendent of Schools Ronald Jenkins.

The budget increase is due in part to a pay scale increase for almost all of the district's staff.

Debt service for the new addition at the Crescent Park School also accounts for some of the budget hike.

SAD44's total debt service will climb from $391,653 to $640,992, as the district starts to pay for the $4.9 million addition.

Operating the expanded elementary school will also cost district taxpayers more.

Administrators are predicting the school's electric bill will double, from $15,000 to $30,000. CPS's heating oil costs will more than double, from $9,900 to a predicted $23,300.

Part of these expenses will be offset, however, because the district will no longer pay $27,200 to rent portable classrooms to house CPS students.

There are also a few new items in this year's budget.

The Buildings and Grounds Department is asking for $35,000 to repair the Telstar High School auditorium roof, which leaks in several places.

The Transportation Department wants new buses and a two-way radio system for its bus fleet.

The district has state approval to purchase one new bus and would like to enter a lease/purchase agreement for three more.

The leased buses would replace three older buses that need costly repairs, according to Transportation Supervisor Richard "Sonny" Blake.

"It will take $45,000 just to put stickers on the old buses," Blake told the board last week. "Two of them need new engines." The older buses are all 1980 or 1981 models, he said.

The lease/purchase agreement on the buses would cost the district approximately $30,000 each year for the next five years.

Blake is also asking directors to approve the purchase of two-way radios for all district buses.

The radios are needed, Blake said, to help the department deal with emergency situations, such as, accidents, occasional reports of children getting on the wrong bus and serious discipline problems. He said 85 to 95 percent of school districts in the state have two-way radios on their buses.

A two year lease/purchase agreement would cost the district approximately $13,200 each year, Blake said. Last year, the board turned down the radio request.

Tonight's (Wednesday's) meeting in Andover begins at 7 p.m.

Two more workshops are currently scheduled. The board will meet in the Woodstock Elementary School gymnasium on April 6 at 7 p.m., and at the Telstar High School library on April 13.

Herrick will also be available for informal discussions outside of regular office hours during the week beginning April 5. He plans to be available on Tuesdays from 5:30 to 7 a.m. at Red Top Truck Stop, Route 2, Bethel; and on Thursdays from 4 to 6 p.m. at Java House, Lower Main Street, Bethel.

FROM THE

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Welcome to three new members of the Bethel Area Chamber: Bethel Animal Hospital, Gary and Anne Stuer, owners; Connecting Rentals, Bethel, Debbie Delulio, owner; and The Bethel Church of the Nazarene, Revs. John and Deborah Grant.

All chamber members and other interested parties are invited to attend a meeting on Thursday, April 7, from 8 to 9:15 a.m. to be held in the conference room of the Bethel Area Health Center. Agenda items to be discussed are: cooperative promotions for the summer; planned events for the summer and how the businesses can be involved; updating the chamber's existing publications (Shopper's and Dining Guides) for the summer; debrief on the Sunday River Showcase Project and whatever else the group would like to discuss. Please call the chamber office if you would like to add an agenda item.

All chamber members are also invited to the general membership meeting at the Gibson Room of the Bethel Inn on April 17. The meeting will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Bethel town manager Madeleine Hentley will answer questions on the town's plans to coordinate with the developers of the Bethel Station.

Other agenda items will include a discussion of new joint promotions and projects, as well as other concerns members might have.

Suicide support group forms

A support group for people who have lost someone close to them through suicide is forming in the Rumford/Mexico area.

Modeled after the national organization, Survivors of Suicide, the group will allow people who have lost a loved one to share their feelings and concerns in a safe confidential atmosphere.

The group will meet on the last Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. The location is 6 Porter Bridge Road in Mexico (the former St. Mary's Family Health Center and current St. Mary's Counseling Office). For information call Angela Mattor at 364-2651.

FOOD FOR ALL SEASONS IN ANDOVER--Father and son team Todd (left) and David Greig recently opened the All Seasons Cafe on Main Street in Andover. The restaurant features homemade soup, stews, chowders, pastries, pies, main dish meals and more at a reasonable price, according to the owners. The cafe is open seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., serving breakfast, lunch and dinner. Wednesday evenings, guest chefs from area restaurants will come to the cafe to prepare some of their favorite meals. The Greig family also runs Dave's General Store in Andover. Gould and Sunday River to merge their alpine and freestyle ski racing programs

Gould Academy and Sunday River Ski Resort have announced a joint program, beginning in the fall of 1994, combining the resources of each to create both a year-round academic/alpine-freestyle training program and an expanded seasonal/weekend program.

"This unique situation creates its own niche by eliminating the current dilemma of choosing between weekend racing, prep schools, and ski academics," said Uel Gardner, Gould head coach and former Rossignol/U.S. Women's Team World Cup Technician. The change creates a new option for youngsters that begins with the River Runners (ages 4-12) and extends through USSA and FIS competition as teenagers. "For all motivated skiers, the bottom line is first-class ski training, a first-class education and home-mountain spirit that is fun and consistent, day to day and season to season," said Gardner.

Gardner will work with Sunday River head coach Kurt Simard. Simard and Gardner will remain as head coaches and will both coach the Eastern Program on a daily basis and work with the Seasonal Program when those athletes are present. This will allow the continuity among those athletes who are presently in the programs, while bringing the seasonal athletes into the training groups on weekends and vacation weeks.

An international caliber program director is also currently being sought.

The new winter daily schedule is planned to allow for 33 percent more on-snow time without having to train during the "low-light" period from 3 to 4 in the afternoon. For the most serious skiers, classes in the winter will end at 11:15 a.m., with on-snow training from 12:30 to 3 p.m., and dry-land training from 3:45 to 5 p.m.

In freestyle, a program is already in place which takes advantage of the academic offerings of Gould Academy combined with Sunday River's coaching and internationally certified freestyle facilities. Jesse Odlin, who took 4th in the Junior Nationals this year in aerials, is the first in the program this year. Sunday River and Lake Placid, N.Y., are the only two facilities in the East currently capable of sanctioned international competition.

"We have a unique opportunity in the world of secondary schools and resorts," said Sunday River director of skier development, Bob Harkins, a former U.S. Ski Team alpine coach and past Gould faculty member. "There is perhaps no place in the United States, and certainly no place east of the Rockies, with a combined level of excellence in its secondary school academic faculty and skiing facilities and coaching," Harkins said.
